Abstract

The purpose of this article is to provide information about SUMIT Project which researched applications of Multiple Intelligence Theory (MI) in American Schools. The purpose of the SUMIT Project was to identify, document and promote effective implementations of MI for the benefit of schools which plan to imply MI theory into their schools. Project's data were interpreted as increases in student work, attendance, behavior, and/or parent participation to school activities. Furthermore, six compass points which were routes that others using the theory have taken and which appear to work were identified. it can be concluded that schools applied MI theory into their curriculum highly satisfied from the results.
